

DELAWARE DIRECTIONS

March 2019 Delaware County Democratic Party Newsletter Number 2-1

Word From the Chair

Peg Watkins, Chair

The theme of this year's MLK, Jr. Breakfast was "The Beloved Community", taken from speeches lesser known than the "I Have a Dream" speech. Bishop Tracy Malone shared what it means to live in community. As your party chair, I consider all Democrats in Delaware County to be part of my "beloved community." Relating to each other in beloved community is how we will identify and support good local candidates in 2019.

We are seeking people interested in running for the nearly 100 nonpartisan local offices that will be on the ballot this fall (see below for the current list of DelaDem candidates). We want to get as many names of Democrats on the ballot as we can, and then support them. In the past, many offices have had only one candidate, and some races have even had no name on the ballot and positions were filled by appointment after the fact. I'm happy to talk and/or meet with these prospective candidates to let them know what resources DCDP can offer them. We also have a committee on Campaigns and Candidates, chaired by Aileen Wagner. Please feel free to contact either of us for more information.

Especially this year, when our candidates are running within one school district, one village or part of a city, one township, these are neighborhood races. We have been developing stronger relationships with other Democrats in the county that make us stronger and capable of more than any of us can do alone. As we look at festivals, street fairs, and parades this year, our presence will show the many non-affiliated county residents that we are not a one-party county, that there is an alternative to the local GOP.

In the 1970s, we said, "Think globally, act locally." Today, in 2019, we need to ACT LOCALLY. Our local candidates in 2018 built the strength of the Democratic community in Delaware. If we don't continue to strengthen that foundation, we will not be ready for 2020, regardless of how much speculation or jockeying for position among candidates happens this year.

We need everyone's help to build this community, whether you run for office or help identify and/or support someone else to run. We have just one county-wide candidate to support: Emma Jones, candidate for Municipal Clerk of Courts. A handful of other candidates have announced, and we expect to see many more. If you are not able to run this year, please consider helping with someone else's campaign – it's the best way for you to get elected in the future!

This year is important; please be a part of growing this beloved community!

Thanks, Peg

"On the Basis of Sex"

We had a great turn-out for our private screening/fundraiser of "On the Basis of Sex". The movie is about the rise of Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg through the male-dominated legal profession of the '50s, '60s, and '70s, from law school on up. The film focuses on a pivotal tax law case she argued that changed how federal laws were written with regard to gender-discrimination. 130 people showed up (on Saturday morning!). It was an enthusiastic audience who responded to the emotional and poignant moments in the film. After the movie, Judge Pat Delaney of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals (at left with Chair, Peg Watkins), shared her thoughts on the gender issues raised in the movie and even some insights on how the relationship between Justice Ginsburg and her husband was portrayed. She also fielded questions from the audience. Special thanks to all who made this event possible including Linda Diamond, Julie Houston, Fund-Raising Chair, and the intrepid Communications team, including Mindy Hedges, Bertie Dell, et al.

Poll Worker Help

As you may have read, the Delaware Board of Elections will be using a new voting system starting in the May Primary. This is a small election with only one contested race on the Republican side. Regardless of the number of items on the ballot, we need to have people trained on this new system. The Democrats are in need of 50 precinct elections officials for May. This way we will be more than ready to go for the big November election that will have over 100 races, countywide. To sign-up, please Contact Amy Murphy at 740-833-2080. You will be paid for training and for election day. You must be over 18 and live in the county. If you have a member of your family who is 17, we may be able to use them as well.

Big News: A Carbon Fee Bill is Introduced! Supported by Citizens' Climate Lobby, including the Delaware CCL Chapter

Marianne Gabel

With a nonpartisan hat firmly in place, this Delaware County Democratic Party (DCDP) Executive Committee member is writing to tell you about the Energy Innovation and Carbon Dividend Act (EICDA), introduced this month in the U.S. House of Representatives by a bipartisan group. What an important moment this is in the fight for the future of the earth!

Why is this bill important? The nonpartisan group Citizens' Climate Lobby (I'm a member, along with at least three other DCDP Executive Committee members) has been working to get a "carbon fee and dividend" bill into Congress for ten years. Support for this bill is critical, given the short time that we have for slowing global warming to a livable level for the earth.

How will it work? This bill would impose a fee on carbon (starting at $15 per metric ton of CO₂ released) paid at the fossil fuel well-head or mine. The fee would rise by $10 per year. This system will be market-based (not regulatory), transparent and predictable, which gives it bipartisan appeal. Any climate policy, to be successful, must have bipartisan support....

Foreseeing higher prices (predictability is important), businesses will plan a rapid transition to clean/renewable energy; demand will foster innovation and lower prices, especially compared to the rising prices for fossil fuels. Prices for carbon-carrying products will rise during the transition, but here's the good news: all funds collected would be returned to individual people for whatever they want to spend the "dividend" on. Nothing would go to the Government except for an administration fee to the Treasury.

Every month, like Social Security payments, every American with a SS# will get an equal share of the previous month's collections. Every child under 19 would be allocated a one-half share. For the majority of middle and lower income Americans, the dividend (increasing every year with the proceeds of the annually rising carbon fee) will cover the increased costs of the transitioning economy. People could also choose lower-carbon alternatives (green energy; fuel-efficient cars; home insulation; "smart" metering) to save more of their dividend.

More information: Importantly for Ohio, there would be an exception for fuel used in agriculture. There would also be an equalizing system at the nation's borders to protect American goods from competition from no-carbon-fee countries.

The CO2 reduction schedule would exceed the emissions reduction planned under the Obama Clean Power Plan (which has never been permitted to go into effect). US emissions will be targeted to decrease by 90% in 2050. If the reduction trajectory is falling short after ten years, there are provisions for additional steps to reduce emissions even faster.

Big "side benefits": With lower carbon emissions in the air, Americans would be healthier. The dividend money that they spend, going into the economy, would stimulate jobs.

There's no way that one article can cover all the details of the EICDA. Executive Committee members can send questions about the bill or about CCL to emgabel@gmail.com.

About Citizens' Climate Lobby: CCL is nonpartisan. Our mission is to build support in Congress for a national bipartisan solution to climate change, by building respectful and informative working relationships with Congress. We had great success in growing a relationship with Rep. Pat Tiberi, who joined the Climate Solutions Caucus in the House.

Citizens' Climate Lobby's Delaware chapter meetings is held on the second Saturday of each month, 11:30 to 1:30. Email emgabel@gmail.com for more information about this bill and our local meetings.

How to Break the "Red Ceiling"

Jack Hartman is a journalist, professor, and activist. In a two-part presentation delivered over the past two monthly Executive Committee meetings, he offered his thoughts on the opportunities for Democratic success in Delaware County. The presentation is reproduced in his column.

Jack Hartman

In Delaware County we Democrats must break what I call The Red Ceiling.

We have not elected a Democrat to a county or state legislative office in more than 40 years. Despite a Herculean effort in 2018, we came up short. We got closer than we have gotten in a long while, but we still failed to win. We failed to break the Red Ceiling. We need a comprehensive "autopsy" to determine why we lost and create a plan for winning in the future.

Our best showing was in the August 7 Special Election for the 12th congressional district, when Danny O'Connor got 46% of the vote to his opponent's 54% in Delaware County. In the general election, Danny got 44% to his opponent's 55% in Delaware County, a net slippage of 3% compared to the Special Election.

Two judicial candidates did get a majority of the votes in the county. Pat Delaney got 62% for court of appeals judge and Michael Donnelly got 52% for Ohio Supreme Court. Melody Stewart got 46% of the vote for the other Ohio Supreme Court seat.

All three judicial candidates went on to win their races. Judicial candidates in Ohio do not have their party membership stated next to their names like candidates for non-judicial do. I believe the fact that only judicial candidates carried Delaware County has great significance to our future. I will get to that in a moment.

From 2008 to 2016, the Democrats running for county and legislative office in Delaware County have received an average of 33 percent of the vote. The Republicans have gotten an average of 67 percent. (The highest Democratic percentage was 39 percent).

In other words, Democrats must persuade 17 percent of the electorate to change their political behavior. This is a tall order because most voters are creatures of habit

A wave election generally nets the benefiting party 8-10 percent more of the vote than usual. That still leaves us 7-9 percent short. Individual voter contact through a strong "ground game" can be helpful, too, but generally produces a 3-5 percent gain. Adding the best case scenarios of both a wave and a ground game together adds up to 15 percent, that is still 2 percent short of victory since we must overcome a 17 percent deficit.

In other words, we could receive a very favorable "double benefit" and still end up losing ... again.

We did make significant gains in 2018. Our six candidates for county and legislative office averaged 40 percent, a 7% increase over our 10-year average. I would credit some of that gain to a mini-blue wave and some of it to a solid ground game.

However, that 40 percent only increased our average vote for county and legislative offices for the past 12 years by 1 percent to 34 percent.

Yet we are far from the promised land of victory. Conditions for us Democrats were more favorable than normal in 2018 in part because two of the republican candidates -- Jordan and Brenner -- were discredited and unpopular in their party. One, Brenner, has a 4-year term and probably will not be on the ballot in 2020 and the other, Jordan, is engaged in a nasty divorce proceeding and is trying to knock off the incumbent Cindy Dinovo in the clerk of courts primary in May. If Jordan wins the primary, our candidate Emma merles has improved chances in the general election. If Jordan loses the primary, he probably will run for re-election to the Ohio house in 2020 and will again become the republican we most likely can defeat.

We cannot predict at this time whether or not conditions for Democrats will be favorable, unfavorable or neutral in 2020.

Nonetheless, we Democrats remain decided underdogs in Delaware county going into 2020. The same power dynamics of the past 40 years remain largely in effect. The republican winners in contested races will have higher name recognition, the more office-holding experience, the more money, more endorsements by county parties and party leaders, more media coverage, more television commercials, more social network presence, more color postcards sent through the mail, more yard signs, and more ability to portray their opponents in a negative light than we Democrats do.

In Delaware county, we must either adopt the tools of the power dynamics or see our string of losses continue. Idealism is a wonderful part of political involvement, but we are doomed if we fail to confront the objective reality of the situation in which we find ourselves.

We Democrats need comprehensive, monumental, game-changing campaigns to win in Delaware County. In order to succeed, Democrats, first, must be willing to invest in the campaign management, political polling and research in order to determine a feasible path to victory. Then we Democrats must be willing to invest in organization and campaign activities -- such as expensive direct-mail advertising, social-media advertising, TV advertising and yard signs -- in order to achieve success. Danny O'Connor was able to do this and ran a close race.

What we learned from the results of the three judicial races, in which two of the three Democratic candidates carried Delaware County and the third one came close, is that the biggest obstacle to our success is the word "Democrat." Remove the party label and our people can carry the county.

What does that mean? It means that the perception of the vast majority of the voters in Delaware County is that the Democratic party does not represent their values. Conversely, it means that the vast majority of the voters in Delaware County believe that the Republican party represents their values and they vote that way. I heard a story a few years ago that a local man went into his voting precinct and said to the workers, "please tell me who the Republicans are so i can vote for them."

It is my belief that the perception of the Democratic party by local residents is derived largely from the actions and policies of the national Democratic party and its leaders, not from the behavior of leading Democrats at the county and state level.

In other words, our brand, the Democratic party at the national level, has caused us to lose for four decades.

So for us to succeed in electing Democrats to county and legislative offices, we must develop and publicize a unique brand of the Democratic party of Delaware County. One that more closely represents the thinking of the residents of the county and one that is distinct from the national party. We must change our brand before we can start winning elections. We need to conduct a public opinion poll to determine the wants, needs and attitudes of Delaware counties and more closely align our party's values with our constituents. We must change the way the Delaware County Democratic party is perceived by county residents before we can break the red ceiling. It is as simple as that. Let us get started.

We must be organized so that we can seize upon these and other issues in county government. We need two strong candidates to come forward to develop these and other issues and to gain name recognition.

LET US BREAK THE RED CEILING TOGETHER!

DCDP Member Spotlight

Interview with Marian Jacques for our Member Spotlight.

Tell us a little bit about yourself -- Where are you from?

I am from the state up North! I lived in the Detroit area until I was eleven. We then moved to California for about 5 years, returning to the Midwest when I was 16. I finished high school in Cincinnati and attended Ohio State University where I majored in social work. I have been in the central Ohio area ever since.

I have two children. My son, Neal, lives with his wife in Albuquerque New Mexico. My daughter, Lee Ann, and her husband live in Washington DC.

I worked in the social service field for over 30 years, retiring at the end of 2011. I very much enjoyed my career and am enjoying retirement even more!

How did you get involved in politics and the Democratic Party? When did you join the Democratic Party in Delaware County and why?

My passion for environmental issues started in 1970 when Ralph Nader spoke at a presentation when I was at Ohio State.

I raised my kids in Marysville and lived there 23 years. During that time I became involved in a number of local issues. I also served two terms as a township trustee.

I have lived in Delaware about two-and-a-half years. I became actively involved with Indivisible immediately after the 2016 election. At our first meeting a comment was made about people joining the Democratic party. The statement was made that there are things you don't like about it, get involved and try to make changes. I took this challenge to heart and joined the Delaware Dems shortly after that meeting.

What is your favorite thing about the DCDP?

One of the things I most enjoy about the Delaware Downs is that it feels very much like a Grassroots movement. It is so easy for us to be angry at the national political scene, the division in our country and the hopelessness of our efforts to change things at the top. However, at a local level, I see where a lot of good can take place and I admire the members of the party and their activism.

What's your favorite personal activity?

I have a new personal favorite activity. My first granddaughter was just born on March 11th. Cassidy Ann is absolutely beautiful and I am looking forward to showering her with so much love.

I also love traveling and spending time volunteering in Tanzania.

What do you want to tell the rest of the Party and our readers about why they should become involved in the Party?

We need people involved in the Democratic party. Fresh new ideas and perspectives are always necessary for the growth of any organization.

I have made so many good friends through my involvement with the party. It is a wonderful thing to be with like-minded people who share your beliefs and values. I believe there is strength in numbers.

We have a lot of work to do but I am very proud to be part of the Democratic party and work with an amazing group of people.

Ohio Legislative Watch

This section is intended to keep our readers up to speed with key legislation moving through the Ohio State House.

New Legislation - In the past few weeks, the floodgates opened as lawmakers in both the Ohio House and Senate introduced a total of 118 bills for consideration by the 133rd General Assembly.

Some of the proposals that we'll be watching in the coming months include:

House Bill 19 - Menstrual Hygiene Products \(Antani, Kelly\) - Exempts tampons and other menstrual hygiene products from the sales and use tax.

House Bill 34 - Minimum Wage \(Kelly\) - Increases the state's minimum wage to be $15 per hour by 2023. Also allows for municipalities, townships, and counties to establish higher minimum wage requirements.

House Bill 49 - Voter ID \(Greenspan\) - To authorize the use of a concealed firearms permit as an approved photo identification for voting purposes.

House Bill 54 - Local Government Fund \(Cera, Rogers\) - To restore revenue sharing between the state and its counties, cities, townships and villages via the Local Government Fund to its pre-2011 levels.

House Bill 62 - Transportation Budget \(Oelslager\) - To approve expenditures of gas tax revenue for fiscal years 2020 and 2021. A placeholder bill today, the legislation will soon be amended to include the DeWine Administration's proposals to address what they are calling a transportation funding "crisis."

House Bill 68 \(Hood, Keller\) / Senate Bill 23 \(Roegner\) - Abortion Ban - Bans abortion at the point of a detectable fetal heartbeat. The bill would also criminalize doctors who perform an abortion after this point with a fifth degree felony, with the ability for the State Medical Board to suspend a medical license without a hearing. Many believe this measure would result in the closure of all remaining clinics in Ohio, effectively ending legal abortion in the state.

Senate Bill 3 - Drug Sentencing \(Eklund, O'Brien\) - To revise Ohio's drug sentencing laws.

Senate Bill 11 - Ohio Fairness Act \(Antonio\) - Prohibits discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity or expression, meaning that it would add LGBTQ people to the laws that make discrimination illegal in Ohio. The bill would not affect existing religious exemptions that are currently present in Ohio's law.

Senate Bill 19 - Extreme Risk Protection Order \(Williams\) - To allow family, household members and law enforcement officers to obtain a court order temporarily restricting a person from having access to firearms if that person is deemed a danger to themselves or others.

Senate Bill 27 - Fetal Remains \(Uecker\) - To require the burial or cremation of fetal remains resulting from a surgical abortion procedure.

Senate Bill 30 - Women's Suffrage \(Kunze, Williams\) - Creates the Bi-Partisan women's Suffrage Centennial Commission responsible to plan and carry out events that educate and raise the awareness about the women's suffrage movement in recognition of the one hundredth anniversary of the 19th amendment.

Senate Bill 33 - Critical Infrastructure \(Hoagland\) - To increase penalties for damage to certain so-called "critical infrastructure" facilities. This measure is believed to be targeted at environmental protests of pipelines and other energy infrastructure.

Senate Bill 43 - Domestic Violence \(Kunze, Antonio\) - Addresses domestic violence by enhancing penalties and restricting firearms from convicted perpetrators. The bill also prohibits strangulation against a family or household member or dating partner.
